Here and there

A woman with long, curly hair, wearing a white blazer and matching trousers, stands in a modern interior. She is positioned between a large, shaggy silver tinsel rug and a light blue, high-backed armchair. The background features a wall of light-colored, open shelving units. Several lit candles in ornate silver holders are placed around the silver rug. The floor is a light, neutral color. The overall aesthetic is clean, minimalist, and contemporary.

The collection has ultimate relaxation as its aim

Wellbeing

Ultimate relaxation is the objective

Focused entirely on outdoor wellbeing, Varaschin's latest collection takes its name – Wellness Therapy – from the idea of ultimate relaxation, to be enjoyed in a garden, by the poolside or on a deck.

Designed by Studio Apostoli, the classic sun lounger is reimagined with a new design: fluid, bold, minimalist, and featuring original details and a soft, unconventional shape. It transforms into a suspended chaise longue with a gently contoured shell that follows the body to create optimal ergonomic conditions. A thin headrest cushion enhances comfort, while high-density, supportive padding emphasises the relaxed seating position, making it appear to float in the air, anchored only by a slender frame.

The metal base is exceptionally lightweight and consists of an oval-shaped element at ground level, with an elongated, inclined ring profile that acts as a joint and supports the shell. The upholstery features outdoor fabric, available in a wide range of options.

Wellness Therapy also includes single and double beds and a multi-functional side table. It is designed for open-air residential spaces as well as outdoor or indoor areas in spas and hospitality establishments.
