Mount Etna in Sicily is one of the world's most active volcanoes. Italian surface brand Florim looks to celebrate it with a new collaboration with Matteo Thun & Partners. 'SensiEtna' fuses lavastone and recycled glass to create tiles inspired by this force of nature. Three finishes – 'Bugnato', 'Crosta' and 'Rigatino' – bring a textural quality to match the mineral-inspired hues. From £400 per tile (florim.com).

Alberto Apostoli is a name synonymous with wellness design. For his first collaboration with Atlas Concorde, he wanted to create 'a living philosophy conveyed through multifaceted surfaces'. With four distinct forms, including '3D Saddle' (pictured), the 'Nyra' tile collection presents sculptural forms that create a calming mood and invite touch. Price on application (atlasconcorde.com).

When it comes to bathroom lighting, you can easily become lost in rules around IP ratings. Ripples offers a new no-hassle solution: the 'Porcelain Bathroom Pendant Light'. Suspended above a basin in a powder room, it makes for a unique alternative to wall lights. Plus, you can choose between brass, graphite, oak and walnut finishes. From £114 (ripplesbathrooms.com).

We all have our own bathroom rituals, but with Diptyque's new 'Les Rituels de Soin' collection, they're being taken to the next level of luxury. Divided into products for the morning and evening, the two new scented candles – 'Le Matin' and 'Le Soir' (£63 each) – as well as the full range of cleansing gels, body scrubs, lotions and oils, are intended to become integral parts of your daily routines, creating sensorial experiences that enhance wellbeing. There's also a selection of firsts for Diptyque, from a body brush (£51) and natural sponge (£33) to a ceramic gua sha tool (£56) (uk.diptyqueparis.com). ➤
